CAERTHAN WARGAMES
(Report)

Thank you very much to all the people of Caerthe for the wonderful time we had at Wargames on March 16-17.

Good Luck to Baroness Morgana as the new Caerthan Mistress of the Lists.

We thoroughly enjoyed the many different types of team fighting and got some good ideas for the Winddragon Invitational. Tod & I were Very Impressed by Sir Mika's bravery(?) in facing 10 armed fighters by himself in defense of 2 ladies.

~~Saturday evening court saw Mistress Bernice of Brittany re-given her Pelican that was awarded at Crown Tournament. She had requested the ceremony be reperformed "at home". There were also 4 AoA's awarded. First, Arlena of Stonymead from Stonehaven, Second, Erin O'Shannon of Caerthe, Third, your beloved (at least by me) Seneschal, Tod Coyle and finally, yours truly. A pleasant shock, I hope to recover enough to function any day, now.~~
Yours in Service,

Lady Ceallach Llyn Tremen

THE WIND SWEPT QUEST
(Part Six)

Gratefully coming out of the zone of danger, you hear the sound of a stream and also girlish laughter. Being thirsty as well as curious, you hurry on. There, on the grass-covered banks, under the trees, and in the water are a group of perfectly formed, scantily-clad young females. Spying you they offer you whatever refreshments and pleasures you desire. You gladly accept, knowing this is both the end of your Quest and that no harm will come to you.

WHAT TYPE OF CREATURES ARE THESE?

Note: The answers to the Quest and the winner will be announced here, next month.

SCALE MAP

A PURSUERS GUIDE TO - TAVERNS & PUBLIC HOUSES - PART II
by I.C. MOOR

THE SWORD HILT INN

Located in the far western reaches. This inn is worth a minimum of a day's rest (or longer). Located at the edge of the sea the Hilt is set high above a tranquil bay that provides a substantial amount of seafood for the dinner table. As the weather is mostly warm all year round local crops are harvested three times a year. The landlord and his wife are two of the finest cooks in the country. Crowned heads from everywhere gather here to feast and discuss the problems of rulers. As the landlord has become wealthy over the years he has a well armed, handpicked force of mercenaries that guard his lands and protect him from invaders. The food is quite exceptional and the ale is beyond compare.

THE CARRION CRAWLER

A rather unusual name for a tavern. This may seem so until you make your first trip to the wind cellar. The tavern is located on the site of the long abandoned dungeons and crypts of the "old city of Deathmarch". The tunnels go on for miles and if you are either brave or foolish (your choice) you might try your luck at finding the "treasure" that is rumoured to be somewhere in the tunnels. A local legend states that the long dead King Dryco of Deathmarch consealed his treasure somewhere in the tunnels just prior to being slain by troops. The tavern's name comes from the flest eating beetles that hunt the tunens and haunt the crypts below the tavern.

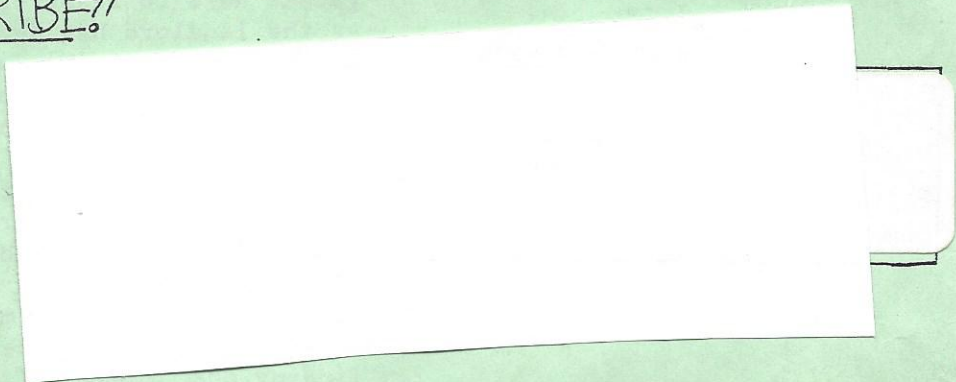

THE PURPLE SPIDER

This is a unique place to stop. The food is palatable, but a bit too salty. The name is derived from the enormous Purple Spider that was slain here in the garden behind the inn. It had descended from the heavens to feast upon the local inhabitants. Fortunately enough for all concerned the wazard known only as "The DARSHAN" was partaking of a bit of ale when screams emanated from outside of the then local tavern (The Swill). Being not well known in those parts (and seeing a great opportunity) The DARSHAN slowly moved into the open and gazed upon the spider who was munching on the local sheriff and a few of his local troops. After gaining the spider's attention by staring intently at the creature he raised his arms. A brilliant bolt of lightning was brought forth from the stick that he carried and the blue flash penetrated the head of the spider and burned a gaping hole thru in seconds. The wizard was well paid for his deed and given a lifetime guarantee for shelter and free food and ale as long as he lived. The only thing that really bothers me is I can't get used to the "purple" colour of the local ale. It tastes fair but I keep wondering about it.

This is the second listing of taverns/public houses located in the region. Next month will be the third listing. Hopefully in a few months my good friend and learned cartographer will have the map of the region completed for all to peruse.
